

My language profile as seen on the diagram above consists of three languages. My primary language is a Greek and it is essentially the one I've been listen and taught the longest. After that my sencondary language is English to which I have a proficiency degree of the C2 level and I personally consider myself fluent at. I've been taught English since I was 6 years old and nowadays it is part of my everyday life. Sometimes there are even days when all my communications are in English and I have no problem with that. Finally, at the age of 13 I started learning French and it is the language where I have my lowest level of certification and understanding (B2).